A field trip to a private ranch adjacent to LCRA's Double Horn Preserve on Lake Travis is tentatively being scheduled for Saturday, July 19. The property is known to contain an extension of a previously recorded prehistoric site that includes burned rock features, grinding stones, stone tools, and ceramics. There is also the collapsed remains of a house dating to the turn of the century with an underground cistern, standing chimney and extensive artifact scatter. An additional previously undocumented historic foundation has been seen nearby. This trip would include the opportunity to lunch and swim (read cool off) on a portion of the lake usually accessible only by boat. Details will be discussed at the Wednesday meeting. Check with Pat (830-265-2392) or Chuck (chixson@gmail.com) for more information or confirmation.

Steward's News

Your local archeological steward is Doris Howard. If you have any questions about the archaeology of the area, she can be your first

The Llano Uplift Archeological Society was organized by people interested in the protection, conservation and study of historic and pre-historic materials and sites in the Llano Uplift ("Central Mineral Region") area of the Texas Hill Country. Its primary goals include education of the membership, students and the public; and to support other groups, researchers and educators with similar interests. Stewardship of the Nightengale Archaeological Center is a major responsibility of LUAS.
